Most students are worried about something. Talking about it in advance can help prepare your student for challenges that they may encounter once on campus.

A little humor goes a long way during a stressful time for families.

Students are faced with difficult choices at college. How will your student decide what the best choice may be?

Supporting your student’s intended area of study and interests shows that you trust their ability to make decisions.

Mastering life skills increases confidence. Can your student manage their budget, do their own laundry or create a plan for time management?

What are you most looking forward to at ECU?

What will you do when confronted with difficult choices?

What can we help you with as you begin college?
