Mursion is an immersive, interactive virtual simulator that was brought to ECU by the College of Education where it provides Education Candidates a safe space in which they can practice what they learn in the classroom. Mursion allows participants to practice collaborative and communication skills and to get direct feedback from virtual students, peers, and professors. The ECU Educator Preparation program was the first educator preparation program in the State of N.C. to use this cutting edge technology training.

The Mursion concept and technology was developed at the University of Central Florida (UCF) as a tool called TeachLive and is now licensed and commercially marketed as Mursion. This cutting-edge technology is being utilized to train future and current educators, social workers, business leaders, counselors and athletes throughout the university, as well as within the local and broader NC community. For more information, to see demonstrations, or to schedule a Mursion@ECU training, visit: https://blog.ecu.edu/sites/mursion

Current ECU students who have not decided on a major or who are considering a change of major are invited to schedule an appointment with a Professional Advisor in the College of Education to learn more about ECU's Educator Preparation programs and how Mursion@ECU can prepare them for success as a future educator. Students can email coeadvising@ecu.edu to get information about making an appointment with a College of Education Professional Advisor.

Come experience a Mursion@ECU demonstration during ECU Open House on September 22, 2018! Ongoing demos will be offered between 10am–12pm in Joyner Library, Room 2508. Explore the College of Education and learn more about our innovative practices, degree options, and support programs by visiting us online at www.ecu.edu/coe/Advising.